The universal passion.
London, J. Roberts. 1725-1727
6v. in 1.

Charles Blake is working for the government studying how large estates, such as Downton Abbey, are enduring the changes of society post-war. He is Evelyn Napier's boss. He and Napier are invited to stay at Downton in 1922. Mary assumes that Blake and Napier are there primarily to advise and ensure that the estates endure and succeed through these troubling times. Blake, however, reveals that was not the case -- that they are more concerned with their effect on the overall economy.

Charles Ernest Carson (b. 1856) was the butler of Downton Abbey, and began working at Downton Abbey as a Second Footman at the age of 19. He lived at the estate to witness the birth of Robert and Cora's three daughters: Mary, Edith and Sybil. In May 1925, he married Elsie Hughes, the head housekeeper at Downton. Seven months later, he handed in his resignation, after suffering from palsy, where Thomas Barrow took his place as butler. Saint John's Abbey is a Benedictine monastery in Collegeville Township, Minnesota, United States, affiliated with the American-Cassinense Congregation. The abbey was established following the arrival in the area of monks from Saint Vincent Archabbey in Pennsylvania in 1856. Saint John's is one of the largest Benedictine abbeys in the Western Hemisphere, with 133 professed monks. The Right Reverend Fr. John Klassen, OSB, serves as the tenth abbot.

Later John accompanied his brother Charles to America and published his first hymnbook in Charlestown in 1737. Returning to London John became a travelling preacher and a leader in the Methodist movement which eventually separated from the Church of England and established its own chapels.Â A service for the tercentenary of the birth of Charles Wesley was held in the Abbey on 2nd October 2007.
