John Bierman, with the help of the newly discovered Stanley letters, leads readers into the interior of both the man and the Africa he tamed. Edition Details. Format:Paperback. Language:English. ISBN:0292708025. ISBN13:9780292708020. Release Date:May 1993. Sir Henry Morton Stanley GCB (born John Rowlands; 28 January 1841 â€” 10 May 1904) was a Welsh journalist and explorer who was famous for his exploration of central Africa and his search for missionary and explorer David Livingstone. Upon finding Livingstone, Stanley reportedly asked, "Dr Livingstone, I presume?" Stanley is also known for his search for the source of the Nile, his pioneering work that enabled the occupation of the Congo Basin region by King Leopold II of Belgium, and his command of the Stanley has always been something of an enigma, thanks in part to his own considerable efforts to distort his life's story--his Autobiography is about as much fiction as it is fact--and also because the early biographical endeavors focusing on his life were either inept or hagiographical. Richard Hall changed all of that with his splendid Stanley: An Adventurer Explored (LJ 3/1/75), a work which rightly recognizes that explorers are a breed apart, and should be considered accordingly. The end result is not a diminishment of the legend, but a revelation of a man with whom many of us will identify. If you have any interest in the Victorian era or the golden age of exploration, this book deserves a place of honor in your collection. Read more.
