Severely handicapped students, regardless of their degree of dependence or level of functioning, should be allowed to participate at least partially in a wide range of school and nonschool environments and activities. 3. The kinds and degrees of partial participation in school and nonschool environments and activities should be increased through direct and systematic instruction. While a severely handicapped student may be capable of at least partial participation in selected environments and activities, there is no doubt that s/hc will not be able to learn all of the thousands of age-appropriate and functional skills in the repertoires of nonhandicapped persons of the same chronological age range.
