In the group section I have elaborated at each step of practical process. I am currently enrolled in AP Chemistry and am immensely worried about this AP Chemistry Exam in May. This is the first AP Class I've ever taken and I am so scared. I was wondering if someone would be kind enough to descriptively tell me what they did to receive a 4 or 5 on the exam. I mean extensively tell me. For example, I have no clue how to do net ionic equations in AP Chemistry. I know you have to memorize solubility rules but what else. I know you have to know that this group of metals reacts with this to form this and this but i was wondering if someone could provide a list for everything to memorize or know before doing net ionic equations. Also, for some reason i am more worried about the multiple choice part.
