Elder abuse (also called "elder mistreatment", "senior abuse", "abuse in later life", "abuse of older adults", "abuse of older women", and "abuse of older men") is "a single, or repeated act, or lack of appropriate action, occurring within any relationship where there is an expectation of trust, which causes harm or distress to an older person." This definition has been adopted by the World Health Organization (WHO) from a definition put forward by Action on Elder Abuse in the UK. Laws protecting the development of policy and practice, and adult protection and safeguarding older people from abuse, has taken place against a backdrop of the unrolling of personalisation and individualisation of care. This chapter considers, first, adult protection legal and policy development in the UK, and the various terms in use to refer to the abuse of adults. Second, features of the development of personalisation policy, in its various guises and manifestations, is considered across the four UK nations. Third, the chapter discusses the impacts on older people of this policy trajectory, and on safegua
