After some discussion of what is a bestseller, and the history of lists, the bulk of the book is a kind of gossipy recitation or series of capsule descriptions of the main bestselling novels in the US (Chap. 4) and the UK (Chap. 5) during the 20th Century. The focus throughout is on the content and genres of these books. There is a short Chap. VERY SHORT INTRODUCTIONS are for anyone wanting a stimulating and accessible way in to a new subject. They are written by experts, and have been published in more than 25 languages worldwide. The series began in 1995, and now represents a wide variety of topics in history, philosophy, religion, science, and the humanities. The VSI library now contains over 200 volumes—a Very Short Introduction to everything from ancient Egypt and Indian philosophy to conceptual art and cosmology—and will continue to grow to a library of around 300 titles. Very Short Introductions available now: AFRICAN HISTORY October 19 2007, 1:00am, The Times. Bestsellers: A Very Short Introduction by John Sutherland. Harold Robbins: The Man Who Invented Sex by Andrew Wilson. It is a curious irony that two books about bestsellers are probably destined to sell very few copies themselves. Let's face it, any study of popular fiction that includes the term "öwegwerfliteratur" (pulp fiction) in its opening paragraph is not aimed at the average reader. Professor Sutherland's introduction to bestsellers attempts to explain the phenomenon to academics who, in all likelihood, don't actually read them. It does that job reaso
