Remotely Global: Village has been added to your Basket. Add to Basket. Buy Now. Whereas common assumptions often posit tradition and modernity as polar opposites, Piot argues that traditional societies are better conceptualized as existing within modernity. Everything one might consider most un-European and "traditionally African" about Kabre--their gift economy, their ritual system, their kinship structures--"is arguably the product of interactions between Kabre and various others (particularly Europeans) over the last 300 years." Arguing that village life is in fact an effect of the modern and the global, Charles Piot suggests that Kabre culture is shaped as much by colonial and postcolonial history as by anything "indigenous" or local. Through analyses of everyday and ceremonial social practices, Piot illustrates the intertwining of modernity with tradition and of the local with the national and global. In a striking example of the appropriation of tradition by the state, Togo's Kabre president regularly flies to the region in his helicopter to witness male initiation ceremonies.
