The countries and regions of Mainland Southeast Asia (SEA) are linked together through their membership in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), the Greater Mekong Subregion (GMS), and the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB). Yet the level of economic integration and political cooperation in the region remain relatively low. Mainland SEA has seen significant improvements in the average standard of living, but substantial levels of poverty remain in the region. The region is very ethnically diverse, and many ethnic minority communities, especially those living in remote mo
